

Our Return to the Garden

Classroom 3

May 31, 2018

On May 3rd, we went on a walk to a community garden. On May 31st, 28 days later, we went back to the same garden.

We followed the same route from our school to the garden. We noticed many changes at the garden and along our walk.

Toot!
Toot!

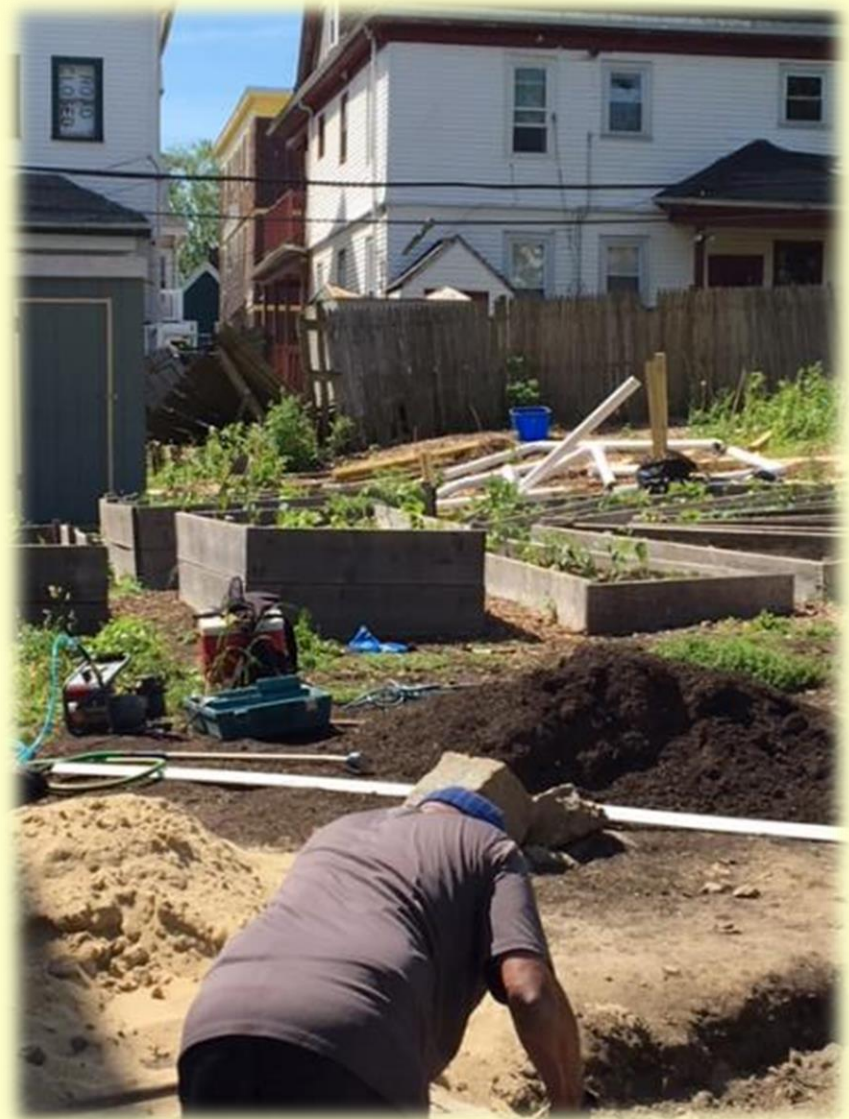

Last time we looked at the train tracks. This time a train went by! Two more went by on our way back to school. We waved and the driver tooted his horn!

Last time the tree was bare in front of the blue house. It is full of green leaves now.

We noticed more colors on houses. We saw a red brick house and a pink house.

We saw a change in the garden right away. There were lots of plants growing. There were also men there working on a new walkway.

So many different types of plants had been planted! Many of them had their names written on sticks beside them.

There were collard greens,
tomato plants, zucchini,
lettuce, squash and cabbage.

They were really big too. Most of them were taller than our measuring stick.

What a great surprise!

There were lots of changes in the flowers too. These tulips lost all of there petals.

We thought these were lilies last time. Now that they have bloomed, we know they are irises.

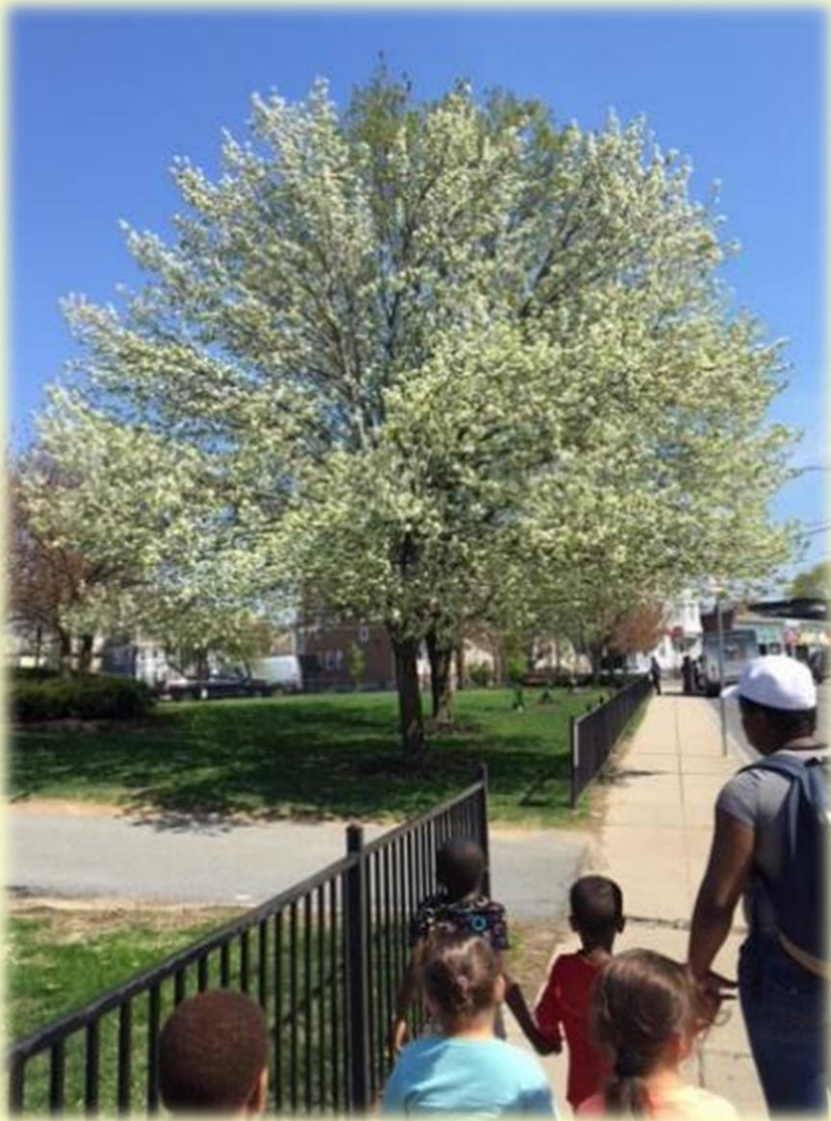

We found many newly bloomed flowers on our walk. There were pretty purple, pink and white flowers.

An ant! He moved very fast.

Amazing! Last time this tree was white. Now it is all green!

We ended our walk each blowing a dandelion off of the train platform. The seeds blew all over, even into our hair.

What a wonderful walk. There was so much to notice. Let's do it again another day!
